POLICE CATCH MAD KILLER IN PHONE BOOTH

Tiger Woman Coaxed From Drug Store In Yuma After 200-Mile Desert Flight.

TAKEN BACK TO ASYLUM

Hysteria Prevents Questioning Of Murderess on Method of Escape 13 Days Ago.

(By United Press)

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Winnie Ruth Judd, mad murderess of her two best friends, today was back in the state asylum she fled 13 days ago.

Her 200-mile flight across the Arizona desert, made on foot while she subsisted on stolen crackers and fruit, ended at Yuma, Ariz., yesterday.

Sunburned, weary, her lips parched for lack of water, her thin hospital shoes worn through, she dragged herself into a drug store telephone booth to call her husband, Dr. William C. Judd of Los Angeles.

She did not complete the call. Joe Metz, chief officer of the state liquor enforcement board, identified her and a few moments later she was coaxed from the booth by police he summoned.

Her second escape in two months—her first ended when she walked into the asylum front door six days after she fled—was prompted by the same persecution hallucination as the first.

'Had to Get Away.'

"They said they were going to cut off my head," she said. "I wasn't trying to escape. I had to get away from that hospital. I had to get protection."

Still stuck in her hair by chewing gum was a safety razor blade she apparently stole the day after her escape when she raided the home of a one-time family friend. It was there she obtained a coat and scraps of food for her zig-zag, stumbling trek to Yuma.

She carried an 11-page letter in longhand addressed to the Arizona legislature and purporting to present new evidence in the murder and dismemberment of her one-time roommates, Agnes Ann Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, in 1932.

Hospital authorities said the letter was a re-statement of the defense she offered at her first trial.

The manner of her escape remained a mystery. Her hysterics prevented questioning but state officials vowed to learn soon how she effected release.

PRESIDENT DIES

Arosemena, Panama's Chief Executive, Stricken.

PANAMA, Panama —(AP)— Dr. Juan Demostenes Arosemena, 59-year-old president of the republic of Panama, died of heart disease today at Penonome, 150 miles in the interior.

He suffered an attack here Nov. 8, but was reported out of danger the next day, and after six weeks in a hospital apparently was restored to health. He resumed full activities at the presidential palace Dec. 4.

Dr. Arosemena visited the Peruvian legation Friday afternoon and was presented with the Peruvian order of the sun.

Then he drove by automobile to Penonome, where he had expected to dedicate a public works program today.

Dr. Arosemena was elected president in 1936 and began the last year of his term Oct. 1.

Auto Murder?

Police at Los Angeles booked Laurel H. Crawford, 41, on suspicion of murder following the death of his wife, three children and a 61-year-old man in an automobile accident in which Crawford survived. Police said Crawford admitted he stood to benefit $27,500 in insurance on the car and its occupants but insisted he accidentally lost control of the machine. The car plunged over a 1,500-foot cliff near Mt. Wilson observatory.

'WIND' DRAWS SOUTH'S SOBS

Tears, Then Roar of Approval Greete Atlanta Premiere Of Civil War Movie.

By HENRY M'LEMORE
(UP Staff Correspondent)

ATLANTA, Ga. — The south will not secede from Hollywood.

A rebel yell, this time of satisfaction, reverberated over Atlanta after last night's world premiere of "Gone With the Wind."

Sherman's cannon never roared more loudly, nor did the hoofbeats of his cavalry cause more clatter, than did the Confederate audience of 2,300 as it watched the three-hour and 47 minute unreeling of the cotton, slave and carpetbag era that is gone forever.

Applause that must have rolled clean out to Stone Mountain, to break against the chiseled profile of Robert E. Lee, broke out when tidings from the first battle of Bull Run came in.

Audible sobs and visible tears came with the scenec of Atlanta full of her wounded and dead when the Yankees laid siege to the town.

From their fourth row seats the four Confederate veterans, all of whom fought in the actual battle of Atlanta, leaned forward in their seats, with hand-cupped ears, as if straining to recognize the face of a friend or the anguished cry of a hurt comrade.

The applause and sobs were interspersed with hisses. When Sherman's legion started their

STORES TO STAY OPEN EVENINGS

Christmas Shoppers to Have Until 9 Tonight, All Next Week.

Christmas shoppers whose slogan is "Don't do today what you can put off until tomorrow," will have additional time for shopping in the evenings next week. Starting tonight and continuing through next Saturday night most stores will remain open until 9 p. m., V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants association said today.

Last minute shoppers who search frantically for something appropriate for "Him" and for "Her," will have at least 12 full hours each day next week.

Merchants urge shoppers to take advantage of morning hours when stores are less crowded, and give the evening hours to people who are employed during the day, Lodde said.

CROSSING JOB ONLY NEEDS U. S. OKAY NOW

State Accepts City and County Agreements For $500,000 Route 30-N Project.

FEDERAL APPROVAL SEEN

Beightler Says State Anxious To Get Improvement, Looks For Start Next Fall.

The proposed $500,000 grade elimination project on route 30-N west of Mansfield needed only federal approval today to make it a reality, and the federal government has already indicated it will approve the plans.

The city and county agreements to provide $70,000 to help finance the work were accepted today by the state highway department and preliminary plans were sent immediately to Washington for approval, State Highway Director Robert S. Beightler said.

"We are pleased with the way in which the county commissioners and city officials have pledged their help toward financing the work and there is every reason now to believe that the project will go through without delay," the highway director told The News-Journal today in a telephone conversation.

State Wants Project.

"The state was particularly anxious to get that improvement on the state program and that's why we have been so lenient with time extensions on the project," Beightler said.

If the federal government approves the plans immediately, as Beightler predicted, work on the grade separation is expected to start late in 1940, possibly in the early fall.

The county will contribute $40,000 to the financing of the job, the city $30,000, and the federal government, state highway department and Erie and B. and O. railroads the rest.

Beightler said a bridge on North Main street in Mansfield which the commissioners had sought to include in their agreement with the state would not be considered under terms of the $40,000 agreement.

"We can't build the bridge and give the county the grade elimination project too for a $40,000 county share," the director said.

VIVIEN TO WED

Scarlett O'Hara of Movie to Marry English Actor.

NEWARK, N. J.—(INS)—Vivien Leigh, Scarlet O'Hara of the newly-produced Gone With the Wind, today announced her engagement to Laurence Olivier, English motion picture actor, in whose company she arrived by plane at Newark airport following her appearance last night at the Atlanta premiere of the film epic.

They will be married, she said, "as soon as possible."

A mutual friend, who identified himself as L. J. Deak of St. Albans, N. Y., met the couple as they stepped from the plane and whisked them away in his car before clamoring reporters could gather details of the forthcoming union.

Actress Dies In 10-Story Drop From Banker's N.Y. Hotel Room

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Lola Laszlo, 21-year-old Hungarian actress and night club singer, died today in a plunge from the tenth floor window of a hotel suite occupied by an international banker with whom she had spent last night dining and dancing.

Seeking to determine whether the pretty blond had fallen or jumped to her death from the suite of Baron Frederick von Oppenheim, detectives after investigating said they found no notes in the hotel apartment and could unearth nothing to cause them to suspect that Lola had planned suicide.

A daugher of Aladar Laszlo, Hungarian playwright now living in New York, Lola was attired in an evening gown and expensive fur coat when her body landed on the hotel marquee.

The 39-year-old baron, police learned, had planned to leave New York today to join his wife in Cologne, Germany. Last night he and Miss Laszlo, who arrived in the United States last March, dined and danced at a mid-town hotel. Early today they returned to the Baron's suite so that Miss Laszlo could pick up Christmas presents for herself and her parents.

While assembling the packages in the bedroom, Miss Laszlo noticed a toy cloth dog and started playing with it near a window which extends almost to the floor. The Baron left the room for a moment, police said he informed them, and upon returning discovered that the actress had gone through the window.

Helsinki After Visit Of Russian Bombing Planes

This picture, among the first actual photographs to reach this country from the scene, shows the damage done in the Finnish capital, Helsinki, by bombs from Russian planes. Red air raiders made several flights over Helsinki, one of the most beautiful and most modern cities in Europe early in the Russo-Finnish war, but bad weather has kept the Russian planes grounded lately.

CROSSING PLEA AVAILS LITTLE

Mayor Learns Commission Has Asked Railroads to Act At 'Earliest Convenience.'

Mayor Claude M. Hunter was back in Mansfield today with little satisfaction from the State Public Utilities commission that anuything would be done concerning full-time protection at railroad crossings inside the city.

The mayor went to Columbus yesterday to demand that the commission force railroads to provide 24-hour protection at all grades in Mansfield.

Hunter said today that he had talked to the secretary of the commission and had been told that the city's request for more adequate protection at the crossings had been sent to the railroads.

The mayor was told that although no demand had been made on the railroads by the commission requiring the protection, he had been informed it had requested full-time protection at the "earliest possible convenience" of the railroads.

A report submitted by an inspector who was in Mansfield to survey the crossings several weeks ago recommended the guarding of all crossings 24 hours daily with the exception of the Surrey road crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad. There he recommended that the railroad and the Ohio Brass company work out a plan of protection, because 95 per cent of the traffic using the crossing consisted of employes of the Ohio Brass company.

BAR HEAD DIES

MARYSVILLE —(AP)— A 65-year career in law ended last night with the death of John H. Kinkade, 86, president of the Union County Bar association. He served three terms as Marysville mayor, several years as city solicitor and was a special examiner of the U. S. pension bureau.

BULLETIN

One person was killed and a woman and a child seriously injured in an automobile-train crash on route 61 in Plymouth shortly before noon today.

A woman tentatively identified as Mrs. Lucille Ewers of Shelby, was killed.

A Mrs. Bertha Palmer of Shelby and her niece, Barbara Drazes of Toledo, were seriously injured. They were rushed to Shelby Memorial hospital.

The accident happened, state highway patrolmen said, when the machine, apparently traveling at a high rate of speed, crashed into the locomotive of a freight train at the Akron, Canton and Youngstown grade crossing at the southwestern edge of the village. It could not be learned immediately who was driving the car.

RECORD PAYROLL

$127,000 Distributed to 1,500 Empire Employes This Week.

The fourth largest payroll since November, 1933, was distributed this week by the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company when $127,000 went into pay enclopes.

Approximately 1,500 factory and office workers received checks, James M. Hill, president of the company, said.

The next regular payday falls on Dec. 29 but Hill said today that the plant plans to pay again next Friday or Saturday so that employes will have the money for Christmas.

GET PAY EARLY

City Employes To Receive Checks In Time For Yule Shopping.

The Chirstmas spirit invaded City hall today when it was announced by Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist that municipal employes would receive their Dec. 31 pay checks in time to do some last minute shopping.

Nist said that following an annual custom employes will be paid on Dec. 23. The payroll for the last half of the month totals about $15,000.

1 DEAD, 2 HURT

Victim Killed as Truck Strikes Tree, Hits Bridge Wall.

BELLAIRE —(INS)— One person was dead today and two others injured after a truck hit a tree and careened into a bridge wall near the Webb mine.

The victim was Lee McClintic, 20, of Webb. His sister, Garnet, 16, suffered a possible skull fracture and a broken leg. Andy Stokish, 19-year-old driver, was hurt slightly.

FARM BUREAU ASKS CCC CAMP

Seeks Aid of Federal Agency In Combatting Erosion In Southern Section.

The Richland county farm bureau and County Agent George B. Ganyard had launched a campaign today for a Civilian Conservation corps camp in Richland county to operate in connection with the federal government's land erosion control program.

At a meeting last night, the Farm bureau board of directors voted unanimously in favor of establishment of a CCC camp and today sent a copy of their resolution to D. T. Herman, federal soil conservation coordinator, at Columbus.

Ganyard said today he had been working for a camp in the county but had learned that there are no new camps being established now.

"We still have hope, however," he said," and want to be in line for one when the federal government is ready to set up new ones," he asserted.

He added that the work of the boys in the camp would probably be devoted almost entirely to erosion control work in the hilly districts south of Mansfield.

The only CCC camp in this area is in Mohican state park near Loudonville.

German U-Boats Arrive to Aid Raider, Report

Besieged Nazi Battleship Must Leave By Tomorrow Or Be Interned; British Warships Poised For Action While Spee Clears Decks For 'Break.'

(By International News Service)

MONTEVIDEO—An undetermined number of German submarines were reported lurking off the River Platte estuary today, ready to join the new naval battle threatened if the damaged German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee tries a break for freedom.

With the Graf Spee ordered by the Uruguayan government to leave Montevideo harbor by 5 p. m., tomorrow (3:30 p.m. EST) or face internment for the duration of the war, emergency repair work was rushed by the vessel's battle-hardened crew and amazing progress was apparent at dawn today.

Seemingly reliable reports place approximately 125,000 tons of Allied warships now at battle stations off Uruguay, ready to attack the Graf Spee the moment her prow cuts into the high seas.

The extent of German reinforcements in South American waters could not be ascertained, although reports persisted that the Graf Spee's sister ship, the Admiral Scheer, as well as a number of submarines, were in the vicinity, foreshadowing a major engagement in the near future even on the off chance that the Graf Spee should choose interment herself.

A Uruguayan naval official, who declined to allow use of his name, expressed belief it would be impossible for the British to engage the Graf Spee should she decide to leave until at least two or three hours after her departure.

The waters of the Estuary are shallow, with the result that only the lightest auxiliary craft can maneuvre freely and safely. On leaving her moorings, the Graf Spee will be obliged to steer a five-mile course through a narrow buoyed channel, flanked by dangerous sandbanks.

It would probably take Captain Hans Langsdorff five hours to negotiate this treacherous channel, and after that his troubles would really begin.

If, as it is rumored, Captain Langsdorff decides to voyage to Buenos Aires to gain another 24 hour respite, he will have to cross a 17-mile wide stretch of international water in which his vessel would be exposed to immediate attack.

Battle Here Not Likely.

It is felt, however, that the British might not open hostilities in this area for fear that battle maneuvers or pursuit might lead the belligerents into Uruguayan or Argentinian jurisdictional waters.

If the Graf Spee decides to attempt a dash to sea, three courses are open, according to Uruguayan naval experts:

1.—A direct run on a straight line to the Atlantic, which would

RETREAT: Finns Fall Back, Burn Villages And Dynamite Ice

BULLETIN

SVANIK, Norway (Near the Finnish Border)—(AP)—A possible decisive battle in northern Finland appeared likely today near Pitkajarvi, 20 miles south of here, as motorized Russian troops rolled south.

(By Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden—Leaving villages in ashes, the Finns were reported falling back today before the onslaught of Soviet Russian forces in the mining sector of Salmijarvi, key objective in the Soviet Arctic campaign.

Bridges were dynamited and the ice on lakes blasted by the Finns as they prepared to face the enemy farther south. The nickel mine properties at Salmijarvi were reported wrecked before the arrival of Russian troops from the Petsamo area.

(A newspaper correspondent at Rovaniemi, south of Salmijarvi, said he watched Finnish engineers lay dynamite charges in the nickel mines, owned chiefly by the International Nickel company of Canada, during the night just before the Finns retreated. He said the Finnish headquarters staff later told him the "entire workings" were blown up.

(The Russian military headquarters at Leningrad reported the occupation of Salmijarvi and said that in central Finland the army advanced 80 miles from the eastern frontier, which would place the troops mid-way across the country.)

Gen. Kurt Wallenius, Finnish commander on the central front, predicted the Finnish-Russian war might last a year and declared he hoped heavy snows soon would aid his defense against the enemy.

"The Soviet artillery is good, the tanks indifferent, the planes

SKY BATTLES: See British Bid For Air Mastery Over Nazis

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Aggressive tactics by the Royal Air Force were described today as an attempt by Great Britain to assert mastery not only of the seas, but of the air above them.

As further details filtered out concerning the sky battle over the North sea—one of the biggest air clashes of the war—the British said five German planes had been shot down, instead of four previously reported.

It was the third time in four days that British warplanes droned over the North sea in an attempt to keep German mine-sowing aircraft grounded at their bases on islands off the German north coast.

Observers said the flights indicated a British decision to carry aerial warfare to the enemy, rather than to wait until German raiders are sighted off British shores.

Already the struggle for air supremacy over waters which have been the graveyard of most shipping sunk since the outbreak of war has cost both sides some of their newest fighting planes.

The British acknowledged the loss of three in the North sea air battle. (The Germans said 10 of 20 new British bombers were shot down, and one Nazi plane was forced to alight.)

At least one new victim of the sea warfare was disclosed, meanwhile, with the arrival at Rotterdam, Holland, of 11 members of the crew of 20 of the Ursus, 1,499-ton Swedish vessel which sank off the English coast yesterday after an explosion apparently caused by a mine or a torpedo.

The Ursus raised the two-day total of sinkings to four British and three neutral ships and indicated a loss of about 80 lives.

U. S. Checking Tax Returns of McNutt's Campaign Aid

'TWO PER CENT CLUB', LIQUOR PROFIT PROBED

Federal Commissioner Admits Inquiry Into Disposition Of Political Funds.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The internal revenue bureau is investigating the income tax returns of prominent Democrats in the Indiana organization, headed by Frank McHale, it was learned today.

McHale is national director of the campaign to make Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt the Democratic presidential nominee in 1940.

The inquiry revolves around the disposition of political contributions, of high profits in the state-controlled liquor business, and of funds raised by the "two per cent club" of Democratic office-holders in the Indiana state machine.

The "two per cent club," said to have been created by McNutt while governor of Indiana in 1933, raises its funds from state employes, who contribute two per cent of their salaries.

Disclosure of the income tax inquiry in Indiana was confirmed by Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering. The commissioner was asked:

"Is it true that the internal revenue bureau is investigating the income tax returns of members of the Frank McHale organization in Indiana?"

Helvering replied:

"We are making investigations of taxpayers in Indiana, some of whom may be connected with political organizations."

Helvering declined comment on any other phase of the inquiry.

From other sources it was learned the government does not at present contemplate indicting any of the Indiana Democrats, even if they are found to be owing Uncle Sam additional taxes. One official explained that each of the men under investigation filed an income tax return and paid certain taxes for each of the years under inquiry. At present, he added, the government is only trying to determine whether additional taxes are due Uncle Sam, and to collect them with penalties.

BACK IN O. S. R.

Trusty Who Escaped In 1933 Arrested In Mt. Vernon.

Glenn Nutter, 25, an Ohio State reformatory trusty, faced the usual penalty today—two years of additional time, for five years of stolen freedom.

Nutter was returned to the institution yesterday by Knox county authorities who arrested him at his home in Mt. Vernon.

He escaped from the reformatory farm March 4, 1933 while working as a trusty in the dairy.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said Nutter's sentence has been extended the usual two years because of his escape.

Nutter was committed Oct. 11, 1933, from Knox county on a charge of forgery for a one to 20 year term.

GEORGE PAYNE DIES AT SHELBY

Native of City Succumbs After Illness of 5 Weeks.

SHELBY—George Payne, 64, native of Shelby, died today at Shelby Memorial hospital following an illness of five weeks.

Born in Shelby on Dec. 24, 1874, Mr. Payne would have been 65 years old next week. He was a member of First Church of Christ.

Surviving are his wife, Lillian; eight sons, Charles, Harold, Roy, Walter, Herbert and Ned, all of Shelby, and John of Akron; also two daughters, Mrs. Phyllis Tarvin and Mrs. Laura Irey, both of Shelby, and eleven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the family home on the Mansfield avenue road with Rev. R. T. Crowe, pastor of First Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be made in Oakland cemetery.

Welcome To—

A daughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farry, 101 Stewart avenue, at General hospital this morning.

A son, born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burgett, Butler, at General hospital Friday evening.

A son, born to Mr. and Mrs Everett Hess, R. D. 4, at General hospital Friday night.

Twin sons, born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thomas, 29 Prescott street, at General hospital Friday night.

A son, born to Mr. and Mrs James Gills, jr., 434 West Fourth street, at General hospital this morning.

Up and Down THE STREET

Because a deputy sheriff made a mistake yesterday and filed an intoxication charge in the wrong court, John Oney of Shiloh escaped with a $5 fine while he otherwise would have received a workhouse sentence. Oney was under a suspended sentence in the workhouse for assault and battery and would have had to serve out the rest of it if he had been taken into common pleas court instead of municipal court. Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston ordered him to serve out the $5 fine and $8 in costs in the county jail, which will take about a week, but he couldn't sentence Oney after he had been fined in another court.

There probably is some beefing going on at Senior High school since a new ruling was put into effect. From now on when students wants to roam through the halls, they're going to have a yellow ticket as a pass. The tickets are issued by teachers and must state where the student is going. Furthermore, there will be teachers stationed in the halls each period to enforce the order. The system was adopted to halt unnecessary noise and confusion in the halls, faculty members said.

Clair Bee who gained recognition in the sports world since leaving Mansfield in 1926, is the subject of an article in this week's issue of Collier's Weekly, written by Stanley Franks, New York sports writer. The title of the article is "Busiest Bee," appropriate enough, and deals with Bee's success as basketball coach at Long Island U. Bee, whose Long Island cagers were undefeated last season, was an assistant coach at Mansfield high during the 1925-26 school year.

Walter F. Meyer, R. D. 3, Mansfield, has lost his faith in mankind. It all happened last night after Meyer figured in an accident at Fourth and Main street. Nervously he sought a cigaret. A bystander told him that he would gladly get a package for him — if Meyer would give him the money. Meyer handed over a $5 bill and the man went for the cigarets —but he forgot to come back, Meyer told police.

Santa and the TALKING DOLL

by SIGRID ARNE

THE STORY SO FAR: Eric and Elsa and the white fox have started from Toyland on a search for the doll, Leezen, that was specially made by the fairies so she could talk to her owner after midnight.

CHAPTER 12

Through The Mountain.

THROUGH the night, hour after hour, the white fox ran smoothly over the snowy hills with Eric, the son of Lightning, and Elsa on his back. They had reached a chain of high mountains when day broke.

Suddenly the white fox stopped. He was tired. "Poor fellow," said Eric.

"Now we can go no further," said the fox. "These are the mountains that only get higher as you go up. No one has ever climbed them."

"What!" said Eric. "Why I can do anything. I shall climb them."

"Wait, wait," said the fox. "Many people have died on those peaks."

"Don't leave me, Eric," said Elsa quietly.

"I forgot, Elsa," said Eric. "Well, let's see what this does." He blew on his flute. He rollicked through dances. He played fierce marches. His flute screamed and then whispered. And as he played, queer little wood folk began to peak out from behind trees and rocks. Soon they were surrounded by a silent group of little old men and women.

Then Eric put down his flute and said to them, "We must be over those mountains by noon. Is there anyone here can help?"

'A REAL FRIEND'

"I don't think so," said the oldest man, "There is only one errand that can take a traveler through them. There is a gate that opens behind those rocks, and a straight tunnel runs through the mountain for him who has a real friend on the other side."

"But I do," shouted Eric pleased. "How can we know that before we open the gate?" asked the oldest man.

"By us," said Eric, his eyes flashing. "I shall never stop until I find Leezen."

"And I," said Elsa, "shall go with Eric because he has been a friend to me."

"And I," said the fox, "will run to the ends of the earth for Eric."

After the woods people had heard they gathered in a circle and whispered. Then the oldest man said to Eric, "Leezen sounds like a real friend to have you pledged to find her through any difficulty. So we will open the gate."

"Ah, little father," said Eric and he bent over and kissed the little man on his white hair. The little man chuckled and led Eric and Elsa and the white fox to a rock on which he rapped three times. It swung back slowly and there, ahead, lay a long straight tunnel.

It swung back slowly and there, ahead, lay a long, straight tunnel.

PRISONERS

In a twinkling Eric and Elsa were on the fox's back again, and the fox was running swiftly through the long tunnel. After a long time the fox sniffed and said, "I smell fresh air ahead."

Eric looked and said, "I see a faint light."

Elsa cupped her ears and said, "I hear a bird singing. We must be coming to the other side." And sure enough they were. Soon they were standing in a grassy meadow covered with white, nodding daisies. A hill fell away below them and a white road led down it to a town in the center of which stood a turreted castle.

"That may be the home of the King of Wesphalia," said Eric. "Hurry."

So the fox leaped off again with a long, easy stride down the hill.

But just as they got to the castle gates twenty guardsmen lowered their spears before them. And twenty more guardsmen closed in behind them.

They were taken prisoners before Eric could say a thing. His hands were tied behind him, and he couldn't play his flute. He said nothing, but as the guardsmen led them off to a tower room in the castle Eric whispered to Elsa, "Have patience."

MONDAY: Eric goes to the trolls' cave.

U. S. DISPATCHES NEW NOTICES OF MORAL EMBARGO

Tells Manufacturers 'Banned' List Also Includes Material For Aircraft Building.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States government undertook today to stop the shipment of plane-making materials to nations which bomb civilian populations.

It reminded manufacturers who export war materials that the "moral embargo" previously invoked against plane sales to Russia and Japan applied as well against any material essentials to the manufacture of aircraft.

Speculation arose in the capital as to whether the broadened ban might pinch Germany as well as Russia and Japan, even though she has not been mentioned specifically by officials as being embraced within the "moral embargo."

In its letters to manufacturers, the state department specifically included molybdenum (an essential ingredient for hard steel) and aluminum under the ban. Russian imports of molybdenum have increased tremendously since the European war began, and reports are current here that some of it is being re-exported to Germany.

The basis of the "moral embargo" is simply the government's appeal to manufacturers. Although there is no power of enforcement, other than public opinion, the embargo has proved effective in the past.

Sharing interest in the capital with the state department's action were these other war developments:

American republics began consulting to determine what to do about recent naval warfare inside the Pan - American "neutrality belt."

The American Red Cross received a prediction from one of its officials in Finland that the Finnish army might hold out against Soviet invaders until spring.

The Finnish minister, Hjalmar J. Procope, made public a letter from the Archbishop of Finland expressing appreciation for the "sympathy and help" of the American people.

Secretary of State Hull said at a press conference yesterday that the United States would meet other American republics half way in any decision they were inclined to make regarding the battle between British cruisers and the German pocket battleship Graf Spee off the coast of Uraguay.

HALF OF GOAL

$2,565 Received to Date In Health Seal Campaign.

Mrs. H. C. Brokaw, Shelby, general chairman of the county Health Seal sale, appealed today to persons who received Christmas stamps to send their money to headquarters by the first of the week.

More than a million seals were sent out this year with the goal set at $5,000. Only $2,565 have been received to date, Mrs. Brokaw said.

The $5,000 goal was set up by the Richland County Tuberculosis association which sponsors the Health Seal sale so that funds would be available for extending the tuberculosis preventive work.

For the past several years the funds from the sale of Health Seals have been used to finance the free tuberculosis clinics at General hospital.

Money for the Health Seals may be sent to the Richland County Tuberculosis association, 59 North Mulberry street.

Not That It Matters

Winchell Loses a Fan by Sensational Inaccuracies About Ohio Relief Crisis

—By JANE WILLIAM

IF THE PEOPLE of New York state and New Jersey are a as gullible as the famous columnist, Walter Winchell, is little wonder that there was hysteria and fainting wh Orson Welles broadcast his invasion from Mars.

Mr. Winchell's broadcast last Sunday night of the "con plete collapse of the state relief machinery in Ohio" and "if necessary the federal government will rush food to the starving people" left us in a state of complete bewilderment and embarrassment. Bewildered that a man who makes a living by news reporting could be so gullible and so irresponsible as to accept a story from prejudiced sources without making an investigation of it; and embarrassed because I have always and with some vehemence insisted to all and sundry that Mr. Winchell was the best news reporter in America and that his stories were authentic. But no reporter, no matter how famous or high-salaried, is good whose stories are unauthentic and sensationally untruthful.

THE GENERAL impression over Ohio on the broadcast is that Mr. Winchell, an ardent admirer of the New Deal, was not so gullible as it would appear but that he had deliberately climbed aboard the New Deal publicity wagon in order to give a black eye to Governor Bricker who might possibly step out of the state picture into a national one.

In all fairness to Winchell I don't think he did that. I think he merely acted like a cub reporter and went off half cocked. It happens to the best of newspaper men—but not often.

FORTUNATELY for Ohio, the Mutual Broadcasting company sent out a reporter to investigate the situation and find out the actual facts, which he later gave over a nation-wide hook up. He found that there wasn't a case of starvation or even acute distress from hunger in all Cleveland; that not a single family had been dispossessed and put on the streets; that gas and water had not been shut off from relief families, and that, on the other hand, the whole thing was one of mismanagement and political import; and that the same "crisis" had occurred in the regime of both Governor White and Governor Davey who preceded Governor Bricker.

But the phase that still leaves us smarting is that Winchell, when he learned he was wrong, merely wisecracked about it. Any smart alec can wisecrack about his error. But it takes courage and reportorial dignity to come out and say: "I was wrong. I blundered facts—but here they are."

A LOT of celluloid footage h gone over the movie dam l tween the premiere of "The Bir of A Nation" in 1914 and that "Gone With The Wind" last nig in Atlanta. That's only a quart of a century, but it represents t difference between infancy a adulthood in the movies.

Both pictures are milestone in the industry. The first on was the first great feature pi ture and, unless I'm mistake was the first million-dollar pr duction. "Gone With The Wind is said to have cost well ove two and a half million. Its cast ing as a motion picture cause almost as much excitement an discussion as the slave questio itself.

By coincidence, the two pictur deal with the same story—that the Civil war and the tragic era the Old South which followed t war. It would be interesting to s one of the old prints of "Birth A Nation" and then compare with the new super-super Tec nicolor four-hour feature of toda Of course you'd have to take cushion and a picnic basket wi you.

Anyway, we'll bet that Atlan hasn't had so much front pa publicity since Sept. 2, 1864 whe the determined Mr. Sherma marched right down Peachtr street.

And while we're in the year 19 in the movie industry, let's no the fact that it marked the deb of a new personality in picture A young actor who was engage at the unbelievable salary of $2,0 a week made his first appearan in a picture called "The Lamb He wasn't a particularly good a tor but he had a merry, mad wa of doing things. He became one the great personalities of the i dustry, a gay adventurer in t Richard Harding Davis tradition

If he lost prestige and ad mirers in the last few years, hi death should remind peopl only that he once provided them with the finest kind of screen entertainment and that hi name, Douglas Fairbanks, wil long remain a nostalgic symbol of the movies' most satisfying era.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Internal Revenue Men Scorched by Hot Breath Of Indignant Westbrook

—By WESTBROOK PEGLE

WASHINGTON—There are errors in the text and ad ministration of the income tax which protect the racketee and thief but expose the honest citizen to harassment an blackmail and place criminal gains on an equal footing unde the law, which should have better morals, with those of legitimat men.

The law itself is at fault, but the internal revenue is not blameless, and I suggest that the next time an agent calls around to use up a citizen's business day combing his return for a problematical shortage of $19 the victim tell him to get out and sink his pick into the accounts of some hoodlum union, where he will be likely to find rich deposits of pay dirt.

This law is indecent wherein it holds that a swindler, for example, who duly reports his income, stating the source and plainly revealing the immoral character of his business, need pay no more than an honest man reporting the same amount. It is said on the law's poor behalf that discrimination would be disallowed by the supreme court, but that probably is untrue.

The government not only demands its share of the wages of sin, but, under the bond of secrecy, withholds information from authorities whose duty it is to prosecute criminals.

It is bad enough that the government of the United States should conspire with the active crook to obstruct the administration of justice, which is a crime in itself.

If the government will not testify against its fellow crook, provided it gets the take, Uncle Sam becomes—indeed he is—the greatest mobster in the history of crime, and his morals are indistinguishable from those of Al Capone.

The government's criminal income is way up because the treasury intelligence unit has convinced the underworld that it is interested only in collections.

The internal revenue is at fault in its custom of neglecting to inspect the books of labor organizations, which are exempt by definition but probably are not exempt in actual fact. Labor unions are declared to be exempt from income tax but subject, nevertheless, to inspection to ascertain whether they are legitimate unions or rackets.

However, the internal revenu naively assumes that every organ ization purporting to be a unio is a legititame union.

There are agents to harass an by resort to shyster interpreta tions, to gyp thousands of legit mate individuals and firms. Bu there are none to spare for wor on the books of rackets whic live by unrestrained extortio from employers and workers both

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + + +

By MARIE BLIZARD

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

Prunella, the bulk of her filling the doorway to Fabienne's bedroom, looked at the girl on the bed, her great round, black face watchful and affectionate. Over one arm she carried a soft pink blanket, the other balanced a tray that contained a foaming glass of eggnog and a smaller glass with two capsules in it.

Fabienne opened one eye, looked at the tray and promptly closed it.

A smile that was like sunshine in brown clouds broke out on Prunella's face. She said, "Miz Fabienne, you cain't fool me. You ain't bin alseep."

Fabienne smiled ruefully. "Am I a baby that I have to sleep all day and drink things I don't want to drink?"

"Yas, ma'am, you sho is. You gotta sleep all the time like the doctor sez so's you can git well and strong again."

Fabienne sat up and punched her pillows to show how strong she was after the attack of influenza that had missed becoming pneumonia only by quick and skillful care a fortnight before.

"What time is it?" Fabienne demanded, looking at the long shadows stealing through the window.

"'Bout time for the doctor to come, Miz Fabienne," Prunella told her, advancing with the tray.

Color came and went swiftly these days in Fabienne's transparent cheeks. It came now briefly with embarrassment because Prunella had read her thoughts.

"I got a nice fire in the living room for yo', chile, and you' couch is all fixed up. Drink this chere egg-nog. Put some fat on yo' bones. Gennelmens like a little fat," she said, laughing her wild, infectious laughter.

Fabienne gave her a crushing glance, but she drank the liquid and swallowed her medicine without offering any rebuke for Prunella's observations.

"Pink or blue today, chile?"

"Pink. And don't forget the ribbon." Pink gave her more animation, made her look prettier.

Prunella adjusted a soft pink robe, brushed her silken hair and tied a pink hair ribbon to keep it from falling over the girl's face. Illness had washed it of old expressions: it looked young and unprotected: a little girl's face.

Fabienne said, "I can walk in by myself, Prunella. You might make tea for the doctor. He's looking rather tired these days and it's frightfully cold out, I think. What a miserable winter!"

"No wonder he looks tired. Miz Fabienne. Night after night when you wuz so sick, he sat up with yo' lak it meant an awful lot to make you well," Prunella told her, fussing with the pink blanket, tucking it in, making Fabienne comfortable and pretty before the fire.

Fabienne frowned to discourage further revelations. "Go along and make tea, Prunella. How soon did Miss Chapman say she'd be here?"

"She said she don' know. Maybe six, maybe sebben. But yo' is to have yo' supper and git back to bed before she comes."

Fabienne caught her underlip between her teeth. She wished that Ellen were coming now, because deep in her heart she knew that she was treasuring these afternoons alone with Bill. Afternoons that were so hard because they slipped by quickly, deliciously on the wings of conversation that was an hour old before she remembered to talk about Ellen. Always talk about Ellen, she reminded herself, how sweet, how fine Ellen was whenever she found herself and Bill on the precious road of intimacy.

The little things they said to each other that were so meaningless! And yet they were spoken in a little space of time that enclosed only the two of them, building up something between them that other people had not shared.

She knew about Bill now. About the farmhouse where he'd spent his boyhood, the dream of becoming a surgeon: the sacrifices he had had to make to get through medical school: and his dreams of the future, working in research with an older friend at a laboratory in Colorado, tracking down the dread germ of paralysis. That was an impossible dream at the present: he had work to do to pay his debts. But some day—

And she told Bill things he didn't know about herself, about her childhood, the gilt on the pattern by which she had lived these years up to a few months before.

They talked of books about which Bill knew nothing, and of music which was a passion with him.

He brought her his little phonograph and his books of symphonies. And once he brought her a Persian kitten.

Fabienne put the silky ball of mewing sweetness into Ellen's hands, saying, "Bill brought it to US, Ellen."

Ellen had stroked the soft little head and put it back in Fabienne's eager hands. "I'll be it's aunt," she told her, smiling her serene and undisturbed smile.

Bill christened it "The Sergeant," because it was such a silly name for it.

It greeted him at the door that February afternoon. "Hya, feller?" he said, picking it up gently.

Fabienne laughed at the tableau. "If you mean that raging tiger, he's okay. If you mean me the same goes. I'm going back to work next week."

He gave Prunella his great coat and came across the room to pick up Fabienne's blue-veined wrist in a cool, professional grasp.

"Anything interesting?" she asked when he held it longer than usual.

He dropped it at once. "You're doing fine. Another week in bed, then a couple of weeks in the south with plenty of sun and you'll be the same old girl—bold, foolish, reckless and—and sweet."

She shook her head stubbornly. "I've got to get back to work. How's my theater doing?"

"Tough, aren't you?" he said, tickling the kitten's ear, but talking to her. "You can forget that theater for a little while. We'll talk about that later."

"I want to talk about it now."

"You're not going to," he told her, striding into Prunella's kitchen. He came back a minute later and informed her that he preferred her invalid's food to his own. "I'm staying to supper with you. You can't get away with a whole roast chicken yourself. After that we'll have a little music and then into bed you go."

Oh, this was lovely, listening to immortal music, watching the firelight shadows play over the planes of Bill's listening face, being content, peaceful. Yes, Bill was her friend and that was good.

At half past seven he got up and came over to her, lifting her easily, and carried her into the bedroom.

Prunella put her to bed and Bill came to the door to look at her for a moment, to frown at her severely so that she would not see the delight in his eyes.

And then he was gone.

Prunella opened the window, straightened the things on the dressing table, hung up the pink robe. "Go to sleep, honey," she said. "You know, Miz Fabienne, I knowed that doctor was yo' boy fren' the fust time I seen him come in."

"Nonsense, Prunella! Don't ever say anything like that again!" Fabienne said sharply.

"He thinks a mighty lot of yo'," Prunella continued, unabashed, by Fabienne's outbreak. "I got second sight that way, Miz Fabienne. I knows he loves you', honey. I kin tell. And yo' ain't so far from loving him neither. You got it writ all over you, chile."

Fabienne looked at her with horror in her big round eyes.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1939.

Drive carefully tomorrow—there can be no Merry Christmas for accident victims.

It might now appear that Soviet Russia secured United States recognition under false pretenses.

"Vitamins Lurk In Pumpkin Pie" says a column on practical health hints. That's one of the delightful things about the necessary vitamins; they lurk in so many favorite foods.

Danger at Street Intersections

UNLESS the growing habit of crashing red lights at down-town street intersections is broken up very soon there is bound to be a tragedy as a result of it.

Then the public will become aroused and, for a few days, the police department will be very active, and motorists will be a little more careful for awhile—then the incident will be forgotten and the usual quota of careless, reckless and dumb drivers will resume "going through on the red," starting on the amber, cutting corners, and otherwise violating traffic regulations, just as they are doing now.

Mansfield is an unusually busy city, for its size, which may account for more than ordinary traffic congestion in the business districts at certain times of the day and evening—but this shouldn't excuse the present reputation of being among the worst cities in the state in which to drive, with less regard for traffic regulations than is found in practically any other city.

Past experience has indicated that the Mansfield police department, as now constituted, is capable of a better job of enforcement than is now being done.

With a busy week of shopping ahead, and with danger to pedestrians greatly increased by reckless driving through street intersections protected by traffic lights, it seems entirely reasonable to ask that enforcement of traffic regulations be brought to its highest degree of efficiency at this time—even if the services of a few temporary special officers are required to do it. If even one street-intersection tragedy can be thus averted it will be well worth the effort involved.

Prayers and Supplies for Finland

THE PROCLAMATION by Mayor C. M. Hunter asking for observance of Sunday as "Finland Day" is in accord with similar action being taken all over the country, expressive of the deep concern being felt by Americans over the plight of the small European republic which is being ruthlessly invaded by Russia.

There is a place for the prayers which will be said in thousands of pulpits and by millions of people on Sunday, and there is also need for the substantial aid that can be given through contributions to the Finnish relief fund which is being raised in this country.

Recent weeks have brought many calls for voluntary contributions for use in various ways. Everybody cannot give to each of these, but all who are so fortunate as to have even a small surplus of money beyond their own immediate needs, can give at least a little to one, or several, of the worthy causes that are thus supported.

The call for contributions to the Finnish relief fund is made to those who can afford to help meet Finland's needs without withholding support of other necessary humanitarian agencies.

Marvels of Modern Chemistry

DELEGATES to the Congress of Industry in New York City recently saw a display of curious things which might have made even Merlin the legendary enchanter, jealous. Mostly they had been developed from such raw materials as "coal-tar and salt, camphor and soy beans, safety glass and plastics, the casein of milk and the sands of the sea," according to the news story about the show.

The products were evening gowns, tailored suits, transparent raincoats and handbags, shoes and other items of a modern wardrobe. There were also dressing table accessories of lucite, pyralin and plastics made from cotton, formaldehyde, sour milk and carbolic acid. There were lovely stockings of a fabric that looks like chiffon and out-wears the more familiar materials, but is made of coal, water and air correctly treated in the laboratory.

It doesn't seem to matter what you want, from photographic films to walking sticks, or from a velvet dress to the fittings of a handbag—apparently it can be created in a laboratory from cellulose, coal-air-and-water, glass and other strange materials.

The magicians of old worked their magic to overcome an enemy or awe the people. The modern magicians of chemistry make better use of old resources and give mankind a wider variety of products to enjoy.

Less Drunkenness In New York

THE NEW YORK Liquor Authority reports drunkenness has decreased there during the past three years. Proof is found in figures presented by the mayors of 117 municipalities throughout the state.

More than half the mayors agreed on the main point. Others said their figures for arrests showed less drinking at private parties and less violence on the part of those arrested. Only one mayor reported a "steady increase" in drunkenness. He attributed it to "the organized liquor interests." It would be useful to have further explanation from him.

The mayors gave various reasons for the "marked improvement," such as better enforcement of liquor laws and "fear of a return to prohibition." The most reassuring and promising explanation came from the mayor of Farmingdale, who said that young people were drinking less liquor at social affairs. "It is no longer smart to drink to excess," he finds.

Transatlantic Airmail

HALF A MILLION letters a week now cross the Atlantic ocean by clipper plane. Pan-American Airways flies two round trips weekly between Lisbon and New York, via Bermuda and the Azores, and each clipper now carries 400 to 600 more pounds of mail than it did last August.

It may be that a great many more letters are being written on both sides of the Atlantic to relatives on the other side since war began in Europe. Or it may be that more people want letters to reach their destination sooner, and so make use of the air service.

Still others may consider the clipper planes safer from war hazards than boats. Perhaps much of the increase is Christmas mail. An analysis of this flood of correspondence would be interesting.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Have you ever instinctively disliked anyone on first sight so much that you wanted to punch him in the nose? There is no logical reason for this, nothing you can point to, or put your finger on. But you meet people like that. Boys especially. Something in the way they look at you or wear their hats. If you think back, you can remember instances like that—meeting boys for the first time and disliking them so completely that just the sight of them antagonized you.

Despite my years, I have come to the realization that I am still something of a boy. I get this feeling almost every day, listening to the radio. There are certain programs I want to hear, and to get them I have to pay the penalty of sitting through the commercials of a couple of announcers the sound of whose voices add wormwood to my soul. Maybe they are sincere. To me they seem affected. There is no logical explanation to their pronunciation of certain words. I have in mind particularly the fellow who speaks in behalf of a clothing company. He can say overcoat just as you say it, or as I say it. He says hello and goodby as any American would say hello and goodby.

BUT THE word suit stumps him. If you think you want a suit of clothes you walk into a store and say, "I want to look at a suit of clothes."

But not this announcer. He ties himself into four different knots and then makes a desperate effort to emulate some British actor saying "seuit." He does this because he is unable to distinguish between the phony and the real English accent, with which Broadway is engulfed.

It is certainly his own business if he wants to advertise himself as a man who is trying to use a word for which nature and his native American training did not equip him. It is like your next door neighbor suddenly taking up "bean" in the place of been. . . . "Have you bean to Miami this winter?"

THAT makes me mad. It angers me beyond reason. I love to hear Leslie Howard and people like Maurice Evans and Ronald Colman and Laurence Olivier use their graceful, euphonious speech, but I hate to hear an American pock-mark a sentence with an affectation that shouldn't be there. It's like a coal miner wearing a dinner jacket to the mines. It simply doesn't belong. It is ridiculous, fantastic, absurd.

If the word "eyether" comes naturally to you and you use it simply because you are accustomed to using it that way, then "eyether" is an expressive and altogether satisfactory pronunciation. But the man has never lived who can pick up "eyether" over night after 25 or 30 years of "eether"—and get away with it. No one may say anything to you, but that is just another instance of even your best friends refusing to tell you. There is pity, and contempt, in their unspoken thoughts, nevertheless.

Broadway is full of phonys and pretenders who somehow will never know what asses they make of themselves for striving for something which isn't there.

THE EMPTY STOCKING

Politicians Unfavorable to Dewey

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Consensus of the political experts in Washington is that the politicians of the Republican party do not want Thomas E. Dewey. To which it may be superfluous to add that most of the big campaign contributors want no part of him. But also the general view of the men who study politics for a living, so to speak, is that for some reason difficult to put briefly, if indeed it can be put at all, Dewey has captured the imagination of a very considerable percentage of the rank and file of the American people.

In the short time since Dewey opened his campaign by that speech in Minneapolis, a great many of the bigwigs of the Republican party have been in Washington, it so happens, and, in the nature of things, have exchanged views. Some of them have been very frank—when talking off the record—and the picture is something like this:

First—why the politicians and the big campaign contributors do not like Dewey. First and foremost, because they do not know where he stands on a great many issues, in fact most issues. They fear that he is an opportunist who would eagerly choose the side of any question most likely to increase his own political strength, regardless of the vested interests, regardless of Republican tradition, regardless even of economic sanity as it is viewed by these two groups.

Second—they claim that they do not like the idea of the "prosecutor type of mind," as they call it, in the White House. They insist that just because a man is an excellent district attorney does not prove at all that he would do a good administrative job.

HIS YOUTH is not included among the reasons, despite the fact that it is talked about more than anything else, because the truth is that if Mr. Dewey had expressed his views fully and saisfactorily on the issues which seem important to these two groups, and if he had been elected governor in 1938 and produced a record of sound administration and sound appointments, that would be no real objection to these particular men and women. Except of course such of them as are stoutly championing the candidacy of some OTHER candidate and hence of course would be using any weapon again Dewey which came into their hands.

But so far as the campaign contributors are concerned it is a little bit worse than merely not knowing officially what Dewey's views on certain issues are. During Dewey's campaign for the governorship, the distinct impression was gained by the utility executives and security holders that he was for vigorous rate slashing in the electric industry. The writer has heard it stated repeatedly that Dewey had taken this stand without really making a study of the situation at all, but merely because his advisers thought this would be a popular stand to take.

It it not important in this discussion whether this charge is accurate or not. The important fact is that the electric industry seems to believe it. Let's look at the ramifications of this for a moment. Obviously, most of the people who make big campaign contributions are people of wealth. Most of them have all sorts of investments in addition to whatever may be their main line of business. Examination of nearly every list of securities disclosed in an estate shows that a very heavy percentage of every sizable fortune in this country is invested in the electric industry.

SO THIS is the sort of word of mouth campaign calculated to dry up contributions for a Dewey campaign even if he were nominated against a New Dealer. And as against a man like John Nance Garner, Cordell Hull, Jesse Jones or Secretary Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, many of the people who usually finance G. O. P. campaigns would "take a walk."

Listen, World!

"Old Folks Were Family Once—Not Taxes."

(Mrs. Elvira Ellis, Columnist of the Day)

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

AN OLD LADY speaks today—and I'm thinking a great nation should hide its face in shame. Listen:

Dear Miss Robinson:

I guess I had better tell you, before I start, that I am not very popular around here. When Henry was alive, we had our farm in Ohio. Now I am visiting my married daughter in Los Angeles. She is a fine girl and has a lot of friends. They are all nice young people, around 35 like she is, but they are mighty sore nowadays. The trouble is, they were all sure that "Ham and Eggs" were coming which would take their old folks off their necks and put them on a state pension.

Well, it didn't and, to hear them talk, you would think they were the worst-treated people in the world. They haven't a decent word for anybody, including President Roosevelt. They all get together here at nights and figure out how they can win next time. It never seems to occur to them how I may feel about it all.

I am 71, Miss Robinson. When I was a girl, old folks were part of the family, not state taxes. Maybe we felt that Aunt Em and Uncle Si were kind of pesty at times. Even Mother was quite a care when she got old and quavery like and kept asking after Pa, who had been dead for 20 years. I used to have to wheel her out beside me on wash days, so she could look down the road to see if he was coming and I am afraid I was not as patient as I might have been. But I would have dropped dead if anyone had suggested Henry and I should put her on the state.

We didn't have much when we started but we took it for granted, like everyone else in those times, that the old folks would live wtih the young ones. It wasn't a case of money. What they had done for us when we were young and helpless and ornery couldn't be bought with money, nor paid for with a state tax. Anyone with notions like that would have been run out of town. We cared for the old folks who had cared for us and were proud to do it. And even the most shiftless folks down on the river bottom did the same. People might be careless in a lot of other things, but they never overlooked their own kin.

I know there is a lot of smarty talk going around nowadays about how the young folks never asked to be born. But I never saw one of them yet that you could have taken the gift of life away from him without fighting like a wild cat. And I never saw one of them either that went running to the pension bureau instead of their own Ma and Pa when their noses were bloodied or their hearts were broken.

They can talk their heads off, but you can't make politics out of family love and duty. Miss Robinson, and something happens to a country that tries to do it, just as something is happening to our country now. Something is going out of us—the kind of decent pride that made us Americans hold our heads up once, no matter how poor we might be.

I'm old and tired and I do not get these new ideas quickly any more. But I am sure of this: THEY'LL NEVER MAKE STATE TAXES THAT CAN TAKE THE PLACE OF PRIDE AND LOVE AND BACKBONE. God never meant it to be that way. Maybe they'll fix it yet to be rid of us old folks and let the government take us over. BUT THE DAY THEY DO, THEY'LL BE SAYING GOODBYE TO THE AMERICA ABE LINCOLN AND GEORGE WASHINGTON KNEW. WHEN KIDS GET TO WHERE THEY WON'T TAKE CARE OF THEIR OWN KIN, THERE ISN'T ANYTHING THEY WON'T SELL OUT TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER.

Billboard Control.

From California, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut and Vermont comes word of stricter control of billboards. In these areas, it is apparently no longer compulsory that all who ride upon scenic highways must read—whether they like it or not.

The billboard is seldom appreciated when it suddenly bilks us of our view of the countryside. It impinges at once upon Nature and good nature. Furthermore, it does not have to block our prospect of the Golden Gate or the presidential range to earn our hearty disapprobation. Even a salt marsh fresh blanketed with snow or a back lot rank with chicory blossoms can "out pull" a billboard any time.

Today, much has been done, and much more can be, to enhance the picturesqueness and beauty of country roads. Community control of billboards is the first step. Intelligent tree and shrub planting is the second. From such good works, it is difficult to see how anything but advantage can result to merchandising as well as to motoring. In any event, annoyance has never yet been known to help sell a prospective customer.—Christian Science Monitor.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE National Labor Relations Act affirms the right of workers in interstate commerce to belong to labor unions or not, as they please, and to choose representatives to bargain for them without intimidation or coercion from employers.

Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York sponsored it, Congress passed it and the President signed it on July 5, 1935, and the Supreme Court upheld it in a series of 5-to-4 decisions on April 12, 1937. Administration of its provisions, subject to court review, is in the hands of a three-man board.

This week the National Labor Relations Board's stewardship of its broad powers became a subject for public inquiry in Washington before a committee of five congressmen headed by Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, long a critic of the labor law. They promised "no circus."

In four years, NLRB's 24,000 cases involving charges of unfair labor practices, or petitions for representation elections, have affected more than 5,000,000 workers. Of some 20,000 cases closed, with or without board action, 51% have been disposed of by agreement between the parties, and most of the rest by unanimous board decisions.

Though the Supreme Court has okayed NLRB verdicts in 75% of the cases carried that far, business spokesmen frequently have denounced the board's procedure as high-handed and its decisions as arbitrary.

The Wagner Act, moreover, does not define the "appropriate bargaining unit." And sometimes both AFL and CIO unions claim to have organized a particular plant. NLRB's nod to one faction, in such cases, often has been followed by squawks from the other.

The first witness this week told the investigating committee he thought the law rather broader than Congress intended in the authority it gave the board "to decide what form of unit is best to insure the right of self organization and will best effectuate the purposes of collective bargaining."

Board Feud Bared.

That witness was NLRB's newest member—chunky, stooped, bald Dr. William M. Leiserson, 56, an ex-professor and father of seven children, who learned about labor as Wisconsin's industrial commissioner and as a member of the National Mediation Board.

Dr. Leiserson, it came out, had suggested to his colleagues that the board's secretary be fired because of "irregularities in procedure," had written the chairman that one case "smelled" and others were "in a mess," and had urged the board's "rules and regulations . . . be revised completely." The policy of the other two board members in choosing bargaining units, he said, "doesn't make sense to me."

The next witness, an AFL leader, said NLRB's policy had deprived 80,000 miners of their rights under the Wagner Act and forced them into CIO. It was during his testimony that the examiner introduced a memo from a regional labor board director quoting a CIO leader as advising his followers to shoot AFL organizers "faster than they would shoot a rabbit."

At Home

Congressional Calendar.

The State Department's authority to conclude tariff-lowering trade treaties, without getting each one okayed by the Senate, expires next June. Mr. Roosevelt said this week he would ask the forthcoming session of Congress to renew the grant. And Senator McNary, Republican leader, predicted Congress would refuse.

* * *

No Mutiny on Bounty.

National interest in relief focused this week on:

Ohio, where a crisis was eased by Cleveland's authorization of the sale of $1,050,000 in tax delinquency notes for relief, Toledo's appropriation of another $273,000 for that purpose, and the President's okay of $1,248,991 worth of new WPA projects for the Cleveland area; and

Washington, where Mr. Roosevelt said he thought relief workers had a right to organize, the same as any federal employes, but couldn't strike against the government.

Law's Limit.

Thou shalt not, the Wagner Act enjoins employers, "discourage membership in any labor organization." Courts have taken that to mean bosses mustn't discriminate against workers just because they belong to a union. But obviously, a U. S. circuit court in New York ruled this week, that injunction doesn't apply until the employer - employe relationship has been established: In hiring workers, an employer is free to discriminate against either union or non-union men.

Ohio Anecdotes

Unite For First Time.

OHIO remained a frontier, rugged and barely penetrable, long after the establishment of the Northwest Territory.

Came the War of 1812 and Ohioans united for the first time in one military body when 1,200 armed men marched behind General Hull to Fort Detroit. This first army of the Northwest was taken by the British when it reached Detroit, but a second army was raised immediately, marching north to Lake Erie, accomplishing two victories on Ohio soil.

Crossing Lake Erie, the army captured or scattered British Redcoats and Britain's Indian allies fighting under General Proctor.

This accomplished, the Ohio frontier moved on, past the old Grenville treaty line. Soldiers after the war were unemployed, and turned their efforts toward developing the Ohio country.

Grab Bag

One-Minute Test.

Words of Wisdom.

God help the man who won't marry until he finds a perfect woman, and God help him still more if he finds her.—Ben Tillett.

Hints on Etiquette.

Don't get into the habit of talking of your troubles to your friends when you meet. Try to keep your conversation cheerful if you would be popular.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. One hundred and eighty degrees.
2. Zero visibility: zero ceiling.
3. At the mints in Philadelphia, San Francisco and Denver.

As Others See It

Prediction.

The millenium will come when the Golden Rule is written in the hearts of men rather than on their office walls.—Columbus Dispatch.

Abroad

Sea Battle.

At large as a raider of Allied commerce, the Admiral Graf Spee chanced upon the British cruiser Ajax convoying a French merchantman off Uruguay last Wednesday morning. Smaller and lighter armed, though faster, the Britisher summoned her sister cruisers Achilles and Exeter.

A running gun duel ensued, within earshot of shore. Hits were scored on all four ships, and the Exeter was put out of action. But her mates continued the chase until, long after dark, they drove the battered Admiral Graf Spee into Montevideo harbor, where it will be repaired or interned. Thirty-six of her crew were killed, 60 wounded.

Bremen to Haven.

The world's two biggest ships, Britain's Queen Mary and France's Normandie, have been tied up in New York harbor since September. No. 3—Germany's $20,000,000, 51,731-ton Bremen—got out of there 36 hours before England declared war, eluded Allied patrols and reached refuge at Murmansk, Russia. From there, this week, she sailed safely home. Britons said one of their submarines had sighted the wanderer within torpedo range but spared her because there was no time to give warning. Nazi planes, Germans retorted, had forced the sub to duck without shooting. Next day, Britain boasted, that submarine sank a U-boat and torpedoed a German cruiser.

Tommies In Action.

On the 99th day of hostilities, last Sunday, British troops in France received their baptism of bullets. "Be vigilant, be cool," their orders read that morning—"and 'fire low.'" They did, Paris reported, and repulsed three waves of attacking Germans. Activity elsewhere on the western front picked up as the week wore on. Frenchmen announced completion of a second row of defenses behind the Maginot forts.

QUOTES

News About Students.

1. For the Christmas season, girls at Smith College are wearing tiny sleigh bells, the constant tingling of which is said to be driving the professors dippy.

2. The average freshman at Dartmouth today can chin himself nine times, officials report, as compared to five times in 1908. The explanation given is that students are now more healthy, due to exercise and scientific diets.

3. Wilson Heller, college statistician, reports students now frown on jitterbugs, companions who can't "handle" their liquor, and any U. S. war except a purely defensive one.

Death Cheated.

Told last July he would die of cancer within three months, Claude Bradley, 53, a New York cement salesman, three a "farewell" party and promised he wouldn't "sit around like I'm waiting for Dracula to grab me." This week, still hearty though confined to a wheel-chair, he mailed 500 Christmas cards and announced that he felt better than he had in 15 years.

Inflation for Fractures.

To speed the healing of an infected or broken joint—and to make sure it doesn't get stiff—Dr. E. Bennette Henson of Charleston, W. That, he told the Southern Medical Association this week, separates bone and tissues, and brings healing oxygen directly against the joint.

Red Belts?

Modern capitalism depends on mass production, and mass production depends on advertising; ergo, Reds try to undermine the capitalist system by criticizing advertising. So reports J. B. Matthews, research director for the Dies Committee. Among groups listed in his report as "transmission belts" for this revolutionary propaganda was Consumers' Union. Matthews is ex-head of its competitor, Consumers' Research.

"The Authority on Authorities"

AT LEAST TRY HIM OUT

EVEN THOUGH your partner's first bid was forced out of him by your informative or takeout double, he nevertheless may hold a few cards of value. If your own hand is so strong that you need very little from your partner to produce a slam, it is worth a try in order to find out if he has something. Even if his hand is next thing to worthless, he probably has about one honor card of some kind, sufficient to keep your slam try from being costly in case he has to pass it. But if he has a ocuple of well-placed honors, he can go on the rest of the way.

South's opening 1-Spade on this deal was passed to East, who doubled. West answered with 2-Hearts, whereupon East forced with 4-Diamonds. When West this time bid 4-Hearts. East passed, and at mere game it was played. The only trick lost was to the spade K, and an argument ensued between East and West.

East pointed out that his partner had shown him nohing except five-card length in hearts, and might not have an honor in his hand, since West's first bid was forced out of him by the double and the second by the diamond jump. That is true enough, but the probabilities, since South did not bid again and North did not, favored West having just tiny bit of honor strength.

Had East, over the 4-Hearts, raised to 5-Hearts. West said he would have accepted the invitation to small slam, because he had shown and a splendidly placed Q the heart K, which had not been in his partner's diamond suit, which being singleton would help his partner to ruff up the suit if necessary over South, who had shown where the strength of the opponents lay. West could know from the bidding that North was nearly blank of any real strength.

THEATERS

"We Are Not Alone."

PAUL MUNI is cast in his first modern role in several years in the Ohio theater's showing of "We Are Not Alone," which starts today and runs through Tuesday. The picture, based on the best-selling novel of James Hilton, author of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," co-stars Muni with Jane Bryan, who gave such an outstanding performance in "The Old Maid." Muni's role is a complete departure from the historical biographies he has done in the past several years. In this new picture he plays a small town English doctor who serves his patients with compassion and skill but is completely unable to remedy the pain in his own life.

"On Dress Parade."

The Dead End Kids play heroic roles instead of city toughs in the picture, "On Dress Parade," at the Madison theater starting today. In a complete reversal of form, the wise-cracking, long-haired gutter-hardened denizens of the slums will become model American youths, though still with plenty of hooliganism, at one of the leading military academies. The story deals with the humorous attempts of Leo Gorcey, playing the role of a tough city kid, to adapt himself to the rigid rules in Washington Military academy. The cast also features Frankie Thomas, John Litel and Cissie Loftus.

"Four Feathers."

The dramatic story of Harry Faversham, who is accused of cowardice by his closest friends when he resigns from his regiment on the eve of its departure to join Kitchener's Army in the Sudan, but redeems himself by some daredevil feats, is unfolded in the tale of "Four Feathers," Alexander Korda's feature which opens Sunday at the Ritz theater. The cast is headed by Ralph Richardson, John Clements, C. Aubrey Smith and June Duprez. Co-featured with this picture is the film, "$1,000 a Touchdown," starring Joe E. Brown and Martha Raye.

"St. Louis Blues."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AS MY father made the remark, my husband sent a sudden, agonized glance of appeal to me, and there rushed over me a flashing realization that while my father knew something of the plot which had endangered his own safety, and that of his son-in-law, he was ignorant of that phase of the affair which involved Babs, the "girl with the gamin face," who was the niece, real or pretended, of the woman plotter against Dicky, and who had posed for the drawings of the latest novel he had illustrated.

Though, from sheer faintness of heart, I had refused to permit my husband to finish the sordid story of the blackmail plot against him, he had told me enough to make me certain that Babs, guilty or innocent—and I strongly inclined to the former premise—was the center of the intrigue. I could understand Dicky's fear of having my father learn of that angle of the affair, but I could also understand the assurance of my father's ignorance of "Babs" which had flashed upon me. It was based upon my knowledge that my father would never willingly hurt me, and that in the old homely parlance, he would have bitten his tongue out before he would have brought the subject of "Babs" out into the open for my hearing.

The next instant a wave of relief surged over me, for Lillian pressed insistent fingers into my arm with a signal which meant: "Hold everything! I'll take over!" I felt every bit of tension leave me at the smooth easy flow of her voice as she turned to my father in answer to his question.

"You never saw anything quite so amusing in your life as the way that plot against the Dicky-bird petered out," she said blithely. "You knew, of course, although he didn't until the very last minute, that their objective was the possession of your person, and they had built up such a plausible blackmail plot against the lad that though he knew he was as blameless as the well-known driven snow, he was pretty well convinced they could land him in the hoosegow for a thousand years upon charges of forgery, highway robbery, arson, murder and what have you. He was all prepared to shell out all the coin he could scrape up, but when they hauled out the real reason and told him they wanted him to turn you over to them, you should have heard our hero get up on his hind laigs and toss 'em hand grenades straight from the hot place. His refusal blistered the air, also the conspirators, and then the shock troops moved into action."

"Meaning you and Harry, I suppose," my father said, smiling at her phraseology. "You told me you were going over there in disguise."

"Meaning more than Harry and me," she said. "Meaning Madge in a most stunning depiction of the grande dame she'll be when she's thirty years older, and ditto heavier. And—what will surprise you as much as it did us—Edith Fairfax, also in disguise, who barged in unbeknown to us all. She put the cap sheaf on the proceedings by telling what she knew about the conspirators, and it transpired that she knew plenty—enough so we felt justified in carting them down to the hide-away for interrogation."

Feels Tension.

She stopped upon the word, and for a long fraction of a second I could actually feel the tension in the air as her glance and my father's crossed significantly.

"Did you get any results from the—interrogation?" my father asked at last.

"Most satisfactory," she returned. "In fact, I do believe all the threads are in your hands at last; tangled, it is true, and needing your deft fingers to sort them out, but yours for the untangling."

My father's deep eyes glowed.

"That is wonderful news," he said. "I began to see the end in sight. One thing only I do not like. I do not like to owe anything to Edith Fairfax. Where is she now?"

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, December 17.

SUNDAY'S horoscope favors the conventional Sabbath routine, with spiritual, mystical and all occult and metaphysical pursuits affording improvement and happiness. All social, artistic and sentimental affairs also give pleasure and profit. It would be wise to undertake important changes under more favorable planetary intervention.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a favorable and progressive year, with vocations and avocations into the higher spiritual, mystical and psychic encouraged. Changes of importance had best be deferred until a more auspicious time.

For Monday, December 18.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a rather conflicting one, with many signs of benefit but some adverse. It would be wise to restrain the impulses and reckless or doubtful indulgences. Keep on good terms with employers, superiors and others who might prove treacherous or vindictive.

Those whose birthday it is may have a generally happy and fortunate year if they would restrain quarrelsome, impulsive and rash behavior, especially in holding the friendliness of superiors, employers or authorities. Social, domestic and romantic activities are fortunately aspected and very lively.

Bellville Halts Lucas For Fifth Straight Win

Lexington Whips Ontario, Moves Into Second Spot; Union Drops Butler Into Cellar.

JUST like ol' man river, Wilbur Miley's Bellville high school cagers keep roll, roll, rolling along.

Five times this season the Bluejays have gone onto the court to do battle, and five times they have come through the victor.

They registered their fifth triumph of the season and the third in the Richland county league on the Bellville court last night when they turned back Lucas, 36 to 27.

Although winning by a nine-point margin, Bellville did not hold what might be described as a comfortable lead until late in the game.

The Cubs battled fiercely all the way, and outscored the hosts in the third period after trailing 14 to 8 at the intermission.

Lucas also held Martin in check for three periods, but the tall center broke away in the final quarter to put the game on ice for the Bluejays.

Martin paced Bellville, scoring with 14 points. Edgerly was next high with 10. Franks tallied eight for the losers.

Bellville also won the preliminary game by outpointing the visiting seconds, 13 to 8.

Lexington Rallies In Second Period.

COACH JOHNNY REES' Minutemen of Lexington high leaped from a tie for third place into the runner-up position last night by winning over Ontario, 28 to 25, on the winners' hardwood.

A 12-point rally in the second period won the ball game for the Minutemen, their second league triumph in three appearances.

Lexington and Ontario battled to a 5 to 5 tie in the first period, and, led by Shaffer, the Minutemen broke loose with a scoring parade in the next frame to run their lead to 17 to 11 at the half.

The Warriors outscored Lexington in the final half, 14 to 11, but they were unable to overcome the advantage by the Reesmen in the second period.

Shaffer was high point man for the winners with four field goals and a pair of free throws. H. Hager tallied eight points for the losers. The preliminary game was taken by Ontario, 25 to 19.

'Pop' Burgett's Club Loses In Last Period.

BOB BURGETT of Butler was probably the happiest coach in Richland county last night, despite the fact that the Bulldogs bowed to Union, 19 to 18, and dropped into the cellar of the county league.

One hour before the game at Union, Burgett's wife presented the popular Butler mentor with a six and a half pound son in Mansfield General hospital.

The mother and son are "Doing fine," hospital attaches said today.

Butler held the advantage all the way until the final period when the Indians rallied under the leadership of Harold Draden and George Curry to pull the game out of the fire.

The Bulldogs held a 3 to 2 edge at the end of the first period, 7 to 5 at the half and 11 to 8 at the completion of the third quarter.

Union passed Butler by scoring 11 points to seven for the visitors in the fourth quarter.

The Indians were outscored from the field, eight baskets to six, but they more than made up the difference at the free throw line.

Union also annexed the preliminary game 17 to 8.

'DUTCH' CLARK NAMED RAMS VICE-PRESIDENT

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The esteem in which Coach Earl (Dutch) Clark is held by his employers was demonstrated today by his election as vice president and director of the Cleveland Rams Football club, Inc.

Madison, Ontario Play At Home

Madison high school's Rams will face Lexington in one of two Richland county league games on tap tonight.

Lexington defeated Ontario, 22 to 25, last night to climb into second place, while the Rams were idle. Union, which registered its first league win last night by defeating Butler, plays at Ontario in the other game.

Comiskey Put Away by Dudas

Another White Hope Goes Way of All Flesh.

NEW YORK —(AP)— These are hard times for the nation's "white hopes."

First, Lou Nova got himself knocked out by Tony Galento. And last night, the fabulous Patrick Edward Comiskey of Paterson, N. J., was plastered by Steve Dudas, a never-was, before an incredulous crowd in Madison Square Garden.

Pat is the golden-haired boy who, up to last evening, had knocked out 22 of 24 opponents and was being heralded the "champion of 1941." His manager practically had accepted an elimination bout with Lou Nova for next March.

Now, and probably for his own eventual good, Comiskey has been revealed for what he actually is—a promising 19-year-old heavyweight, with a fine right hand and lots to learn.

Dudas, who rates only as a tough trial horse, gave a surprisingly good performance in winning his decision.

HISTORY FLIPFLOPS IN O. S. U.-WOOSTER TILT

COLUMBUS—(UP)—The pages of Ohio sports history will flip backward tonight when the basketball teams of Wooster and Ohio State meet in the Fairgrounds coliseum.

It was 34 years ago that the teams first met on the basketball court.

YUNCKER BROS.

Besides the importance of bore care, the exterior of your rifle or shotgun should be wiped with an oily rag to remove rain, fog and sweat, all promoters of rust. Keep the mechanism clean and wiped with an oily rag, too, but don't squirt oil into the action, on bolt or firing pin, or it may give uneven ignition.

Hunters and fishermen living in Braggadocia, Mo., must be under a rather tough handicap, when they tell of their experiences with game and fish.

If you want to give him a real THRILL this Christmas, a new Johnson Sea Horse motor will do the trick. Its dependability, power, many advanced features will give him many years of pleasure and satisfaction. Yuncker's, local dealers, offer models as low as $49.50 F.O.B. factory.

The abundance of game in the old days, is indicated by the price list of an Omaha, Nebr., commission house, dated Feb. 30, 1875, and recently reprinted. Quail are quoted at $1.25 a dozen, wild ducks at $1.50 and $2.00 a dozen, and rabbits and squirrels at $1.00 a dozen.

In the tropics natives use the remora for fishing. With its powerful suction-disc head the remora fastens onto another fish, then is hauled in by a line tied to its tail.

If he's a fisherman, young or old, you can make a big hit with him by giving fishing tackle this Christmas. You'll find a host of suggestions in Yuncker's complete stock, rods reels, lines, lures etc. and for just as much or as little as you wish to spend.

If you feed game birds in the winter (and it's a great idea) don't forget grit for all birds. Without grit the birds can't grind their food and extract all its nourishment.

A one-power scope for shotgun use has recently made its appearance, and many experienced shooters "went for it" right off. Being one-power it has no magnification, but seemed to make the target more distinct, they said.

Porpoise and blackfish jaw oils provide the most delicate and highly refined lubricants known for use in watches and chronometers. Only half a dozen men in the world are sufficiently experienced to separate these oils into their various grades.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Toledo's high speed Rockets strike a major obstacle on the basketball court tonight when they encounter Princeton's Eastern league quint in the main half of a doubleheader on the Toledo home court.

Tonight's program is spotted with intersectional games: Oberlin at Geneva, Wittenberg at St. John's in Philadelphia; Ashland at Washington & Jefferson; Xavier at Ball State; Cincinnati at Kentucky; Bowling Green at Grand Rapids (Mich.)

On the home soil, Mt. Union invades Dayton to open the season for the Flyers under a new coach, Jim Carter; Heidelberg plays at Fenn; Wooster at Ohio State; John Carroll at Western Reserve.

It was Ohio's second victory of the season and in the two games Baumholtz has scored 42 points.

Thornhill 'Fired,' Not Surprised

PALO ALTO, Calif — (AP) — C. E. "Tiny" Thornhill's football coaching head fell under the axe at Stanford University last night a few hours after he had predicted his own figurative decapitation.

His "firing" as he termed it, ended 18 years of football tutoring at Stanford, the last seven as head coach and producer of three Rose Bowl teams.

Officially the University's board of athletic control, by a vote of 7 to 2, recommended to Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Stanford's president, that Thornhill's contract be not renewed when it expires next April 1.

Dark Horse In Tie At Miami Tourney

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — National Open Champion Byron Nelson, fighting an uphill battle for the nation's golfing supremacy, shared the lead with a dark horse today as a sensational-scoring field reached the third round of the $10,000 Miami Open.

Little-known Gene Kunes of Philadelphia came out of yesterday's twilight shadows with a sparkling 66 to tie Nelson at 137 at the half-way mark. The National Open king's chief rival, Henry Picard, was three strokes back.

Ralph Guldahl, always a dangerous contender, stayed up near the front with a par 70 for 138, where he was even with E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock.

STOCK MARKET OPERATES OVER NARROW ROUTE

Department Store Sales For Past Week Exceeds 1938 Figures, Survey Shows.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market moved over a narrow route today with gains slightly in the majority.

Market analysis noted the survey of the federal reserve board which disclosed the country's department store sales for the week ended Dec. 9, exceeded those of the comparable week last year by 4 per cent. In the preceding week there was a year-to-year decrease of 5 per cent. Principal sales recoveries were reported by Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago and St. Louis.

* * *

A constructive omen was seen in statements of insurance company officials indicating more than $750,000,000 insurance funds have been put into industry this year through investment in corporate bonds and mortgages. At the same time, the companies' holdings of governments were said to be the smallest since 1932.

* * *

Sentiment for the rails was bolstered by a preliminary report of the Association of American railroads showing 90 systems that yield 82.3 per cent of total railway revenue had an increase of 14.7 per cent in gross in November over the same 1938 month.

'WIND' DRAWS SOUTH'S SOBS

Tears, Then Roar of Approval Greets Atlanta Premier Of Civil War Movie.

march to the sea, the Loew's Grand theater sounded like a pit of angered snakes. Men, women and children hissed.

The very roof shook with applause when Scarlett drew a revolver from the folds of her skirt and shot and killed the Yankee soldier who had invaded her home, Tara.

There wasn't a dry handkerchief in the house at the finish, not even Margaret Mitchell's. In one of her rare public appearances, the shy little authoress stood before the crowd, and in a halting voice, paid tribute to the picture that brought her book to life.

"It was a tremendous emotional experience for me," she said. "I cried again and again, just as did all of you. They joked about the fact that Mr. Selznick took so long to produce the picture. But now that we have seen the picture we all know that he was right in waiting until he could get the perfect cast."

Miss Mitchell's sentiments were shared by some of the staunchest defenders of the confederacy since Jeff Davis.

Mrs. W. D. Lamar of Macon, Ga., president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, could not have been more lavish in her praise had she been speaking at the dedication of a memorial to General Lee himself.

"It was wonderfully faithful to the traditions of the south," Mrs. Lamar said. "And I am sure that the ladies of the U. D. C. who originally objected to the selection of a British girl, Vivian Leigh, to play the part of Scarlett O'Hara, are thoroughly convinced that she portrayed the part with complete authenticity."

Technicolor photograph reaches a peak in Gone With the Wind. There are scores of shots in the picture of such sheer loveliness that even the most rock-ribbed Yankee will thrill to them. And the burning of Atlanta is a tremendous spectacle, with the flames and destruction so real that one can feel the heat and choke on the dust.

call for a break through the allied blockade.

2.—A dash over the northeasterly route used in entering Montevideo.

3.—A southward course which would take the Graf Spee past the important Brittish naval base in the Falkland islands.

Uruguayan authorities were unanimous in believing that Captain Langsdorff would be foolhardy to depend upon fog to cover his vessel's movements at this time of the year.

Persistent reports that the British battle cruiser Renown and the aircraft carrier Ark Royal are in these waters were emphasized today by the correspondent of the Buenos Aires newspaper La Prensa, who said he had learned on high authority that the Graf Spee was fleeing from these huge dreadnaughts when she ran into the British cruiser squadron on Wednesday.

The Renown and Ark Royal, according to this story, were unable to catch up with the fleet Graf Spee, so the cruisers Exeter, Achilles and Ajax were called into battle.

Sailors were seen this morning actually painting over the spots in the German pocket battleship where three British cruisers on Wednesday blasted holes as large as ten feet in diameter.

Reports from Punta Del Este —off which the battle took place —appear to confirm that the British lineup across the entrance to the Platte river now includes at least seven warships—ranging from destroyers to battle cruisers.
